PRICE THREE CENTS

HOSPITAL HOST
TO 350 GUESTS
HERE SATURDAY

An estimated 350 guests visited the Warner hospital Saturday afternoon to give that institution its most elaborate and successful observance of national Hospital Day.

Comments of visitors to staff members and Red Cross Nurses' Aides on duty during the afternoon, showed that the visitors were much impressed by the array of equipment, the complete and up-to-date facilities and the evidences of competent surgical, medical and nursing staffs.

As they inspected the special displays on the three floors of the hospital, they were served tea by officers and members of the Women's Auxiliary. A special feature of the Hospital Day program was the showing of a natural color motion picture reel of an appendicitis operation.

See Musselman Plans

Another special display that attracted much attention was a reproduction of the architect's drawings of the plans for the first and second floors of the Christian H. Musselman foundation memorial addition to the hospital. The structure, to be erected as soon as materials can be secured, will extend the hospital building almost to the Nurses' home. Basement plans for the new structure are not yet complete.

Staff members were on hand to explain the display of equipment used in the administration of caudal analgesia in selected cases of childbirth and for lower body surgery. Nearby was an infant incubator fitted into a standard hospital infant's crib. Placards explained the temperature and humidity control features of the incubator and the sterilization of the air in the machine by means of ultra-violet rays. Two such incubators are available at all times at the hospital.

Visitors were given a peek into the nursery—from the outside of the visitors' window, and then were guided into the operating room where an impressive assortment of instruments used in surgery, the reduction of fractures, suture materials, the most modern splints were supplemented by oral explanations and informative placards. There were motion pictures and X-ray plates on display showing the effectiveness of the Smith-Petersen nail in handling dangerous bone fractures.

with 20 mm cannon fire from an airplane. He did this over Okinawa, a day after he had returned to flying after being forced to make a water landing and abandon his plane, which had been damaged by enemy anti-aircraft fire.

Ensign Hanawalt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hanawalt, 333 Baltimore street, Gettysburg. His wife lives at 415 East Lott street, Kingsville, Texas.

Ensign Hanawalt and his aircrewman, Robert V. Hays, Aviation Radioman third class, were flying their new plane over Okinawa, and had attacked anti-aircraft positions at Naha airfield as their primary target.

Bombs And Strafes

"It was very difficult," said Ensign Hanawalt, "as our dives directly on these positions presented the enemy with a no-deflection shot. The return fire was very accurate and certainly scared the hell out of me."

Scared or not, the pilot dropped one 500-pound bomb and one 250-pound bomb on three batteries of heavy anti-aircraft. The batteries were so closely placed that all three were destroyed in the same blast.

"As I pulled out from the dive," he added, "I saw a Jap army officer riding a horse along a country road, and killed both with my 20 mm cannon fire."

JUDGE SHEELY
LAUDS MOTHERS
AS WAR HEROES

Paying tribute to mothers as the unsung heroes of this and every war, Judge W. C. Sheely, speaker at the annual Mother's Day services held by the Gettysburg Lodge of Elks Sunday evening, said it was a fitting coincidence that Mother's Day should have been proclaimed a day of prayer and thanksgiving by President Truman for the cessation of war in Europe.

Mothers and prayer are synonymous, continued Judge Sheely, as it is they who teach their children their first prayers. It is the mothers who constantly pray while their sons or daughters face the dangers of war and it is the mothers who show real courage when their children are called for duty.

Total sacrifice is never too great for a mother, said Judge Sheely, citing the instance of a mother who sent eight sons to duty and who refused to permit publicity about it, stating simply she was doing no more than the mother who sent her only son, both were giving all they had.

In concluding his address, Judge Sheely added, "We must look to a permanent peace which will prevent the mothers of tomorrow becoming Gold Star mothers."

A capacity crowd attended the services at which Arthur R. Buehler, exalted ruler, presided.

A tribute to mother was given by Richard A. Brown, Esq.

Assisting in the ritualistic part of the service were: Glenn L. Bream, Esquire; J. Donald Dillman, Esquire; lecturing knight; W. Preston Hull, Esquire, and knight; and Herbert Oyster, Esquire, as esteemed leading knight.

Dr. Frederick Tilberg sang the "Cradle Song," Mother O'Mine, and Mother Machree. The accompaniments were played by Paul Ecker.

Here And There
News Collected At Random

The "Mighty 7th" war loan drive officially opens today . . . a drive to raise 14 billion dollars to finance the rest of the war . . . the campaign to erase the Japanese as a menace to civilization.

It would be particularly appropriate if this drive was made an "Appreciation Campaign" for the glorious victory in Europe . . . a drive to express our thanks to those gallant soldiers who valiantly struggled to defeat the Axis aggressors and oppressors on the European continent.

The national quota is the purchase of seven billion dollars' worth of war bonds by individuals and a similar amount by corporations.

Adams county's announced quota thus far is:
The purchase of $700,000 worth of E bonds by individuals.

The purchase of $760,000 worth of all other types of bonds by individuals . . . or a total of $1,460,000 worth of bonds by individuals.

The corporate quota for Adams county will be announced June 1.

The individual quota for the county represents an average of less than $40 worth of bonds for every man, woman and child.

Adams county has oversubscribed every war bond drive . . . and has done it by substantial amounts. The "Mighty 7th" is the most important up to date.

Here is an opportunity for Adams county to again demonstrate that it is solidly back of the boys on the battlefield . . . that it is grateful and appreciative of the big job accomplished in Europe . . . and that it knows the boys will repeat their victory.

ASKS REVIEW OF HIS CASE

A petition to the court to review the facts of his case and the sentence imposed was filed with the county court of quarter sessions Saturday by Eugene G. Grab, Harrisburg street, who earlier paid a $250 fine on a charge of carrying an automatic pistol without a permit.

A rule was granted and made returnable next Monday by Judge W. C. Sheely.

Mr. Grab entered a plea of nolle contendere February 6 to a charge of transporting or carrying a .32 caliber automatic pistol from Gettysburg to Peach Glen in violation of the Uniform Firearms act.

In his petition, which was presented through Sidney E. Friedman, Harrisburg attorney, Mr. Grab stated that "testimony at the trial" showed that the pistol had been unloaded; that the clip had been removed and was not present in his car and that there were no cartridges in the pistol, in the car or on the person of the petitioner.

He further stated that when the magazine was removed, a safety disconnect within the body of the pistol disconnected the trigger and locked the firing mechanism "so that the defendant had rendered the pistol incapable of discharging a cartridge" and that the pistol therefore was not a firearm.

In the petition, Mr. Grab contended that such being the case, he was not liable for prosecution under the Uniform Firearms act.

Troops of four Russian armies rooted the last fanatical Germans from isolated pockets in Austria and Czechoslovakia today, and long lines of prisoners marched eastward to prisoner of war camps.

Moscow announced 1,000,000 Germans had been rounded up since Germany's surrender, for a total of 2,800,000 captured or killed since the Russians' final offensives began Jan. 12. By Soviet tally, Russian armies had killed or seized 12,600,000 Germans in four years of battle.

As Europe began its mammoth tasks of reconstruction, Prime Minister Churchill in a victory review pledged Britain to fight beside the United States against Japan "without flagging or failing," and to earnest cooperation in creating an effective structure for peace.

Man-Hunt Spread

A man-hunt spread through Europe, not only for such top-notch Nazis as Heinrich Himmler and Joachim Von Ribbentrop, but other war criminals less well known. Gen. Eisenhower expressed regret of any instances in which high enemy officials had been treated on a "friendly basis" by senior Allied officers. Such treatment would directly violate his orders, he said.

Supreme headquarters said it had no confirmation of a report by one Allied officer that Himmler, executioner of the Nazi party, was in Allied custody, delivered over by Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz who put him under house arrest just before negotiations for Germany's capitulation began. Other reports said Himmler still was hiding somewhere in Germany. Pat Hermann Goering will be charged with the massacre of Lidice, said the Allied-controlled Luxembourg radio.

To Transfer Prisoners

Supreme Allied headquarters sought to arrange with Soviet Russia for the evacuation of some 138,400 American and British prisoners of war from the Soviet zone of occupation in Germany. If it were done by air, these men could be sent homeward in two to four weeks, it was estimated.

Home to Norway came Crown Prince Olav. He announced the Norwegian fleet was ready to enter the fight against Japan, and that King Haakon would soon return to his freed homeland. In Belgium there was speculation whether King Leopold might ever return to his throne. Belgian Premier Achille Van Acker said Leopold would not come to Brussels for some time because of ill health. He had been deprived of his throne in May, 1940, by an order approved by the Belgian cabinet in exile.

MISS STAUB IS WED SATURDAY

Miss Charlotte Staub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Staub, McSherrytown, became the bride of James R. Shetter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Shetter, Gettysburg, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the rectory of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary church, McSherrytown. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Cletus Wagaman.

The couple was attended by Miss Louise Staub and Stephen Staub, sister and brother of the bride.

The bride wore a gold colored gabardine suit with brown accessories. She wore an orchid corsage. Her attendant wore a brown gabardine suit with matching accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

A reception was held at the bride's home for the immediate families.

Following the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside in an apartment at 106 Carlisle street.

Mrs. Shetter is a graduate of DeLone Catholic high school, McSherrytown, and had been employed at a cigar factory in McSherrytown.

The bridegroom graduated from Gettysburg high school and is now employed at the Glenn L. Bream garage.

Record numbers of Superforts and carrier planes gave Japan the heaviest pounding of the war today in a two-pronged attack approaching the night of 2,900 plane raids of the European theaters, as Nippon lost her grip on three potential invasion ports.

American Marines in the bitterest ground action drove into the mine-strewn rubble of Naha on Okinawa, potential springboard for the ultimate assault on the enemy's home islands. Some 600 miles to the west Chinese troops mopped up in two recaptured China ports which may some day receive U. S. forces and supplies for the reconquest of the mainland.

3,500 Tons on Nagoya

An unprecedented flight of more than 500 Superforts poured more than 3,500 tons of new type incendiary bombs on Nagoya, transforming Japan's third largest city into a blazing fire box in the first daylight raid of its kind.

Tokyo radio reported waves of carrier planes from two task forces struck simultaneously at southern Japanese airfields, in a two-day attack that extended "through the entire night." Japanese broadcasters said that for eight and a half hours yesterday 900 carrier aircraft bombed and strafed the airfields, major source of aerial attacks on U. S. Okinawa invasion forces which have cost the Nipponese 3,168 planes in seven weeks.

Use Human Bombs

Led by flame-throwing tanks, U. S. Sixth Division Marines drove into the northern outskirts of Naha, capital and primary port of Okinawa. There they were slowed by heavily mined streets, a river running through the city, and an intensified artillery barrage as the Japanese threw in fresh reserves and employed human bombs in an attempt to check the advance.

Other Tenth Army units edging toward the China coast occupied tiny Tori Shima, 55 miles west of Okinawa.

On the Chinese coast itself Chinese troops entered the port of Foochow. They were reported battling Japanese troops in the streets of Foochow after driving into the port city for the second time since the Japanese first occupied it. Japanese have listed Foochow, near the northern tip of Formosa, as a potential Yank invasion point.

Capture Sinciang

Chinese regulars and militiamen recaptured Sinciang, 250 miles north of Foochow, and drove the retreating invaders northward toward Hangchow. A Chungking army spokesman reported Japanese were withdrawing to northern China where they will make their final stand on the continent.

General advances reported from all theaters included Australian capture of Wewak, by-passed Japanese strong point on New Guinea, seizure of the elaborate Del Monte airbase on Mindanao island, in the southern Philippines; and reconquest of Tarkan's oil fields off the Borneo coast.

"Sweeping Devastation"

B-29 pilots returning from the fire raid on Nagoya, reported "sweeping devastation" in the industrial city. Japanese headquarters, taking official cognizance of Super

TWO PHASES OF WAR WITH JAPS ARE DISCUSSED

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign News Analyst)

Our war against Japan is divided into two phases—the assault on the Mikado's home islands (which have been in the grip of an American bombing tornado since yesterday), and the struggle in China—and the further we progress, the more apparent it becomes that these phases might become distinct from each other.

That's by way of saying that it's possible—although one can't label it as a probability at this time—that we might be able to force the surrender of Japan proper and still have before us the vast task of beating the formidable enemy military machine on the continent. In any event, this is a contingency for which we must be prepared.

It therefore is gratifying to have Prime Minister Churchill assure us again that Britain will be fighting right along side us until the Japs are cleaned up. That war in the Pacific isn't a matter for complacency, you know.

Many Unanswered Questions

Much of course depends on whether Russia joins us, especially as regards the house-cleaning in China. The way it looks now, it may be a great deal easier to force surrender of the Japanese mainland than to blast 2,000,000 tough Nipponese soldiers out of their fox-holes in China and Manchuria.

Maybe the capitulation of the Mikado would carry with it the surrender of all the forces on the continent. That's the big question, and it's one we can't answer until we have Tokyo on its knees. This column long ago pointed out the possibility that the Japanese war-lords in China and Manchuria might decide to try to establish an empire for themselves on the continent even though ordered to surrender by the Mikado.

The argument against this is the emperor's spiritual hold on his people by virtue of their belief that he is a god.

However, we can only get our answer from time. It's interesting to note that Motoki Yamazaki, president of the south Manchuria railway, says there are to be greater efforts to make Manchuria self-sufficient. He couples this with the idea of bolstering Japan's fighting strength—but it also would strengthen the Japanese hold on China.

were light. Japan said eight were shot down.

Extend Carrier Raid

Tokyo radio said the two-day carrier raid centered on Kyushu, southernmost island of Japan, but was extended today to neighboring Shikoku and southern Honshu. Land-based fighters, medium bombers and B-29s reportedly struck in advance of and at intervals during the carrier raid.

Japanese propagandists made their usual claims of heavy damages inflicted on the supporting naval task forces, each reportedly built around two or three carriers and battleships. They also claimed new strikes today at U. S. Third Fleet units in the Ryukyu islands.

Imperial air forces did damage to one major U. S. warship and several smaller craft last Friday. During the day 169 Nipponese planes were destroyed.

In strikes of their own American aircraft destroyed 22 Japanese ships. The Navy announced the minesweeper YMS-103 was one of the "light units" recently sunk by Japanese planes off Okinawa. Casualties among her crew of 30 were "moderate."

WCTU Hears Evils Of Social Drinking

The evils that may grow from "social" use of alcohol drinks were described to members of the Gettysburg chapter of the WCTU at a meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Twisden, East Middle street. Miss Emma Howard was in charge of devotions on the theme of Mother's Day.

The article read on "Social Drinking" was by Dr. W. J. Mayo and quoted life insurance statistics to corroborate the writer's claim that social drinking that leads to alcohol addiction causes more illness and deaths than any other single factor in the nation.

Mrs. Harold March was added as a new member. Mrs. Twisden served refreshments. The next meeting will be held June 8 with Mrs. Cora Berkey.

Court Signs Order In Non-Support Case

An order to show cause why Guy Bolen, Baltimore street, should not be arrested for failing to comply with a support order was made returnable next Monday in an order handed down by the county court Saturday morning.

Bolen was ordered in court April 20 to pay $12 per week for the support of his wife, Esther Bolen, 520 West Middle street, and their child. The petition, which was presented by Mrs. Bolen, stated that Bolen was $30 in arrears with his payments.

"IKE" REGRETS PAMPERING OF NAZI OFFICIALS

Paris, May 14 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower said today he regrets instances in which senior officers treated captured Nazi and high German officials on a "friendly enemy" basis in direct violation of his orders.

The supreme commander said in a statement: "My attention has been called to press reports of instances of senior United States officers treating captured Nazi and high German officials on a 'friendly enemy' basis. Any such incident has been in direct violation of my express and long standing orders.

"Drastic Measures"

"Drastic measures have been set in motion to assure termination of these errors forthwith. Moreover, any past instances of this nature are by no means indicative of the attitude of this army, but are results of faulty judgement of individuals concerned, who will be personally acquainted with expressions of my definite disapproval.

"In the name of this great force and on my own, I regret these occurrences."

The supreme commander's statement was made following widespread criticism appearing in the British and American press on treatment of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering by the Seventh Army.

Dispatches from the Seventh Army last Wednesday said Goering was given a lunch of chicken and peas at the headquarters of Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, commander of the 36th (Texas) Division after "brief greetings and a handshake" and posed for pictures with Dahlquist and Brig. Gen. Robert Stack, of Schenectady, N. Y.

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Led by President Truman, Americans gave thanks on Mother's Day for victory in Europe and besought an early end to the Pacific conflict.

Mr. Truman prayed in the chapel of the national naval medical center at nearby Bethesda, Md. Although he had emphasized that Mother's Day was a specially-fitting occasion for the national day of prayer, he had proclaimed, the President's own 92-year old mother was unable to accompany him to the services after flying here last week from Missouri.

"Mama didn't feel up to the trip," Mr. Truman said as he set out from the White House with other members of the presidential family for the 11-mile drive to Bethesda.

The interdenominational services there were conducted by Chaplains J. Jack Sharkey and John Weise.

torious achievement by an overwhelming victory over the Japs in the Pacific. . . this appreciation can best be shown by oversubscribing the "Mighty 7th" war loan drive in the shortest possible time.

Buy as many bonds as you can now . . . encourage every member of your family and your neighbors and friends to do the same thing . . . let every citizen be a volunteer worker in this drive and let's put it across with a bang in a hurry . . . that's the kind of news that pleases the men on the battlefield.

Chairman E. W. Thomas of the county War Finance Committee, issued the following statement today:

"The Mighty Seventh War Loan Drive officially opens today. It has been designated as "B" Day. All over the Nation today the thousands of people who have enlisted in that vast volunteer group to sell War Bonds will call on our people to step forth, invest in America and support the finest army, navy and airforce the world has ever seen.

"More than 100 boys from Adams county have paid for our liberties with their lives. No sacrifice compares to this. No hardship compares to those many of our boys have suffered and will suffer in the hard fighting ahead of us in the Pacific areas. Suppose we do without something to buy more War Bonds? Can that be compared to the anguish and the sorrow of those families that have lost one of their members to 'preserve your liberties and mine'?

"We can't say that the war is one-half over. We don't know how long it will take to defeat Japan. In one of the areas in which our gallant boys have been fighting, the enemy has been crushed, but that doesn't mean that the war is one-half won. We can't let up on our bond purchases. Our boys will continue the fight without any let up. They will not slacken their efforts. To those boys who are still fighting and to the ones that will be put into the fight, the war isn't half over. The war in the Pacific is going to be tough. It is farther from our shores than the war in Europe. The cost in dollars will be greater. Our unstinted support of this War Bond Drive will minimize the cost in human lives. Let's back these boys to the limit.

"The people of Adams county have never failed to make a quota assigned to them. They cannot, and will not fail to make this quota, but it will be necessary for every individual to buy more War Bonds this time than ever before. The quota is higher.

"Our brave boys raised the Stars and Stripes over Iwo Jima. The least that we can do is raise the money."

DESTINY
Whom God elects for service great
May humbly let the years slip by
And never guess how truly straight
To glory all his pathways lie.

Man's final purpose none can see
Or step by step chart man's career
And through the veil of destiny
Discover why God sent him here.

Yet, when the hour requires the man
To bear great burdens and be wise,
By ways that only God can plan
Full-fit for duty he shall rise.

Oh, call it destiny or fate
Or Providence that guides us here,
But him God holds for service great
When he is needed, will appear.

Today's Talk

"I WILL FEAR NO EVIL"
When the Psalmist uttered these words—"I will fear no evil"—he undoubtedly had lifted his heart and spirit high.

Fear was planted within us merely as a protective measure—not as a destructive agency. Fear should only make us alert. The control of fear is up to the mind. If it can say, with sincerity and conviction, I will not fear, I cannot fear, or why should I fear? then fear comes under personal control.

Fear can dominate a life and eat at its very vitals. Nothing is more destructive. The evils in its train are endless. It can wreck the body, and deaden the mind to all usefulness. How full of beauty, how free from all anxiety, is that line that David uttered in the Twenty-third Psalm, "I will fear no evil." For any of us to say that, and mean it, is to express personal victory over our very nature.

In the first place, fear is a poison. It affects every part of the human organism. And what a clean, happy outlook on life anyone may have when he banishes all fear from his mind and heart! And it can be done. Your Creator never meant that you should harbor fear at any time.

Take the creatures of the wild. Largely, their fear has been inspired by man in his effort to kill them. It is amazing how quickly a wild animal can be made to trust a human being once it has learned that it need not fear. In a week or so I have tamed the wild red squirrel to take peanuts from my fingers and sit on my knee and eat them. There are black squirrels, where I am now for a few weeks, and they come readily at my call for the peanuts that are always in my pockets.

It is when people lose faith and courage that they begin to fear. The religion that Jesus introduced into the world was not a negative but a positive one. He calmed the waters for the fishermen who were seized with fear. He healed the sick, and comforted the sorrowful. Two of the most inspiring words He ever uttered were these: "Fear not."

By banishing all fear from your mind and heart, you gain the confidence essential to a triumphant life. You thus help to create confidence in others. And through prayer and thanksgiving, fear can take a permanent holiday!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Eternal Courtesy"

Will the next invasion be in Japan or China? Wherever it is, thousands of tons of paper containers will be needed for ammunition, food, and medical supplies. Send yours to the fighting fronts.

URGES HOME PRESERVATION OF FOOD IN '45

It is extremely important for every family in Adams county to preserve food this year, emphasizes Miss Mildred L. Adams, home economics extension representative. With 48 per cent of the commercial pack of foods set aside for military use in 1945, the supply of canned foods for civilians will be less than at any time during the year.

In addition to the short supply is the present high point value on canned foods. With this high point value, homemakers may find it difficult to provide the five or more daily servings of fruits and vegetables that are recommended for good health, unless some food is preserved at home.

In a nation-wide survey on home preservation of food in the fall of 1944, the following facts were obtained:

Lack of time and expense were two main reasons for not preserving foods at home.

Seventeen per cent of the non-farm families and seven per cent of the farm families started to preserve foods within the last four years.

Most of the non-farm families used open kettle or boiling water bath while nearly half of the farm group used the pressure cooker.

When spoilage was reported, the largest number of families said less than 5 quarts were lost.

Jar lids and rubber rings were major difficulties of all homemakers.

About one-tenth of the families dried and froze some foods.

Foods canned by both farm and non-farm families included fruits, tomatoes, beans, corn, peas and sauerkraut.

These Are The Rules For Growing Fine Tomatoes

Tomatoes are the Victory garden's most important crop. Even the smallest garden can grow them and get a good yield for the space. A well-grown plant should yield a peck of fruit or more, properly cared for, fed and watered.

When space is limited, plants can be staked, or trained to a fence, or trellis, and take up no more room than a row of carrots. Each plant yields a little less, but the fruit will average better, and mature earlier; and more plants can be grown in less space. Heaviest yields are obtained from plants that sprawl on the ground, but they take lots more room.

Plants are usually grown under protection, or purchased, and set out after all danger of frost is over. They mature fruit earlier than is possible by sowing seed in the garden; but not as much earlier as might be supposed. Many tests have shown that plants directly seeded in the garden, bear only a week or two later than those started indoors. But for the earliest crop, use plants of an early variety, started indoors.

Need Heavy Feeding and Water.
Staked tomatoes may be pruned to a single stem, or allowed two or three stems as desired. Be sure to use varieties that grow full sized vines, if you prune them. Small vine, also called determinate varieties, should not be pruned, but on the ground they can be planted as close as two feet each way.

Tomatoes begin with a single stem, but at the joint of each leaf a branch develops. This branch may be cut off when small, and by cutting all or allowing some of them to grow you can shape the plant to a single, double, or triple stemmed plant as you prefer.

Tomatoes do not cling to support but must be tied with some material that will not cut the vine. Fruit should not be exposed to direct sun, as that causes sunscald, so never remove leaves from pruned plants. Plants need heavy feeding, and lots of water. Irregular water supply causes black decayed spots, known as blossom-end rot. A mulch about the plants of straw, lawn clippings, or any suitable material keeps the soil from drying out and increases yield.

Tomatoes will be killed by a frost, and may be injured by a severe chill, so they should not be exposed to such experience.

EUROPE'S FOOD NEEDS AFFECT U.S. HOUSEWIVES

By STERLING F. GREEN
Washington, May 14 (AP)—The feeding of liberated Europe became a housewives' problem today with a four-point increase in the ration value of lard, shortening and cooking and salad oils. These now require 10 points a pound.

This OPA action, taken at 12:01 a. m. yesterday, was accompanied by a new attack on black market operators. OPA announced that the names of more than 3,000 price violators have been turned over to the Bureau of Internal Revenue so that the government may try to recover illegal profits.

This technique—similar to the one that sent Chicago's Al Capone to federal prison—will permit the government to determine whether the violators have attempted any income tax evasion. It will be used in all cases, a spokesman said, where OPA discovers price violations exceeding $500.

HOW TO GROW WATERMELONS IN YOUR GARDEN

Watermelons can be grown in the home garden, with hills as close together as three by three feet. Close spacing may reduce the size of the large growing varieties, but it usually increases the number of melons.

Favorite garden varieties are not the largest, however. Most popular is Stone Mountain, and other favorites are Kieckley's Improved, Leesburg, Greystone, Blacklee, and Florida Favorite.

If your garden has grown watermelons during the past five years you should plant a wilt resistant variety. Of the above both Leesburg and Blacklee are wilt resistant and both are very satisfactory.

Melons Are Nutritious
Put about a pint of commercial plant food, well mixed with the soil, under each hill a week before planting, or use a scoopful of manure and half that amount of commercial fertilizer. Then plant 10 seeds to a hill and thin to two plants. Sow as soon as danger of killing frost is past. Keep the weeds down until the vines cover the soil.

Are watermelons nutritious, as well as being tasty? Careful research proves the edible flesh of an average ripe watermelon contains in each pound: 137 Calories, 1.81 Protein grams, .036 Calcium grams, .059 Phosphorus grams, .91 Fat grams, 30.38 Carbohydrate grams, .408 units of Vitamin A, .69 units of Vitamin B, .64 units of Vitamin C, and .54 units of Vitamin G.

Children and most adults, will joyously eat ten times as much watermelon as they might other vegetables containing more vitamins per ounce.

creation of a "food czar" to centralize all government controls, increased subsidies for meat packers and inauguration of subsidy payments to cattle feeders.

President Truman said "We must and can find a way" to share American food with "others so badly in need." Mr. Truman wrote in reply to a letter from Food for Freedom, Inc., asking him to see "for the sake of the future peace and security of this nation and of the world x x x that our food commitments abroad are faithfully kept."

Problems With Cantaloupes

Cantaloupes require from 120 to 140 days from the date of planting seed to vine maturity of the melons. This means that planting must be done as soon as the soil is warm and frost dangers are past. With the abnormal advancement of warm weather this spring it is quite safe to make planting at once. From the beginning of the cantaloupe growing season the primary aim should be to bring the melons their ripening stage in dry weather when the sun is bright and the temperature high.

Avoid soils where cucumbers, watermelons, squashes and other members of the cucurbit group have grown in the past three years. Burn all refuse of these crops at the end of each season.

Turn under a liberal application of well rotted manure in a five-foot strip where the rows or hills of cantaloupes are to be planted and supplement this with complete fertilizer worked into the strip soon before planting time at a rate of 800 to 1,000 pounds per acre. The same strength fertilizer may be later used to side dress the plants about the time vines begin to run.

Effective Against Beetle

Wilt is the most destructive disease of cantaloupes in this and most other eastern regions. It is perhaps carried solely by insects, with the striped cucumber beetle the chief offender. Pull and burn wilted plants as soon as they are discovered and keep plant lice and the striped beetle exterminated at all times.

There are several effective weapons to employ against the striped beetle—a cryolite dust composed of 2 parts cryolite and 1 part talc, or a nicotine dust prepared by mixing 5 teaspoonfuls of nicotine sulphate with one pound of hydrated lime. The most widely used control remedy is a dust composed of one pound of calcium arsenate mixed with 15 pounds of gypsum (land plaster). This should be applied every few days, beginning as soon as the first leaves open.

After vines begin to form, cease dustings, regardless of the kind used, and spray with Bordeaux mixture, adding calcium arsenate at the rate of 1½ pounds to 50 gallons of spray whenever the beetle is present. Plant lice can be controlled only with a contact insecticide, preferably a nicotine dust applied when the air is still and the temperature above 70 degrees. Or spray of the same contact poison may be employed at the rate of 1 to 1½ teaspoonfuls of nicotine sulphate to a gallon of soapy water.

Avoid Sulphurs
Anthracnose, a fungous disease identified by reddish-brown spots on the leaves and tan-colored cankers on the stems, is carried on the seed and lives over from year to year in the soil. The same disease attacks cucumbers, melons and other cucurbits, hence the wisdom of long rotations. Disinfecting the seed in a corrosive sublimate solution before planting is advisable. Frequent spraying with Bordeaux mixture should be practiced when anthracnose appears early in the season.

Do not apply any insecticidal or fungicidal spray or dust on cantaloupes if the mixture contains sulphur.

Follow the same preventative and control measures for leaf spot as are recommended for preventing and curbing anthracnose.

Buy fresh seed each year from a reputable dealer rather than save seed from home grown melons. And write the editor well in advance of the expected arrival of cantaloupe problems for all the information and advice desired.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving remembrance of our dear wife and mother, Ida May Brame, who passed away two years ago today, May 10th, 1943.

Two lonely years have passed since that sad day.

When one we loved was called away.

Forget her? No we never will.

We loved her then, we love her still.

The days are lonely without Mother. She made our home so bright; Her cheering words, her beaming eyes.

Were always our delight.

Gently the stars are shining Down on the silent grave Where lies our dear Mother Whom we loved but could not save.

Help us Lord, to bear our sorrow Help us put our trust in Thee Till we meet the one we loved In that bright eternity.

By her husband,
J. Martin Brame.

THREE POWERS MANEUVER FOR WORLD POSITION

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

(Associated Press Diplomatic News Editor)

San Francisco, May 14 (AP)—Anglo-American-Russian Maneuvers for postwar world leadership are developing at top speed behind the scenes of the United Nations conference. So far, Russia is credited by her western allies with some major gains.

The Soviet Union, moving firmly into a situation once dominated by Anglo-American policies, is regarded by Anglo-American officials as seeking at least three main objectives in her foreign policy. 1. Arrangements for her own security—first by linking her strategic borders with governments Moscow considers friendly (in Poland, for example) and by laying down protective treaties, as with France and Britain; second, by helping develop and support the world security organization being planned here.

2. Building up a case which will enable Moscow to bid for what it might call "moral leadership" of the world. This follows the line of showing Russia as a champion of democratic rights and freedoms and the western powers as defenders of conservatism. In keeping with it was Foreign Commissar Molotov's fight against admitting Argentina to the conference, his efforts to have the world trade union congress represented, and his proposal that dependent people under trusteeship be promised eventual freedom.

3. Studying Russian Moves. Prepare a firm basis for Russia's maximum influence in the power politics of the future. Russia's proposal that the big-five sit in as permanent members of a trusteeship council is seen as a move in this direction; so is the Soviet recommendation that the proposed world security council, under big-five control, have the final word on setting up military bases in international territories.

Russia's moves here are being studied intently by British and United States authorities because she is relatively new to the international scene. Only now are her post-war policies as a great military, political and geographical power—and potentially a large industrial power—beginning to take shape.

It is in the balancing of big power rivalries without disrupting unity on peace organization that the conference has had its greatest success to date.

New Developments In Travel Awaited

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Athletic leaders adopted a wait-for-developments attitude today in the wake of ODT's disclosure that sports may be hit hard by further travel curtailment.

Pointing to the tremendous redeployment war problem, J. Monroe Johnson, Office of Defense Transportation director, said Saturday that sports will "be lucky" to play out regular schedules this summer and fall unless Japan quits quickly.

"Even if Japan quits by next September, it will be about six months before we recover enough to help anybody," he said.

STRICT CONFORMIST

Wilson, N. C. (AP)—The ration board was puzzled when a gasoline application endorsed by red pencil, "in place checked with red pencil," was returned with no signature. But, when it came back the second time signed in red, the applicant's explanation cleared up the confusion. He wrote: "I can't find a red pencil in Elm City. I borrowed this one from the bank."

Tons of waste paper containers were used in taking the Philippines. Other invasions are on the way and will need every scrap you can save.

A SLIGHT CASE OF Theft

By HUFUS REED

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 33

"Sorry, Mr. Humbert," the voice of his secretary brought him back to the business in hand a few minutes later. "But Mr. Hanson will not be down today. He's sick. Is there anyone else in the section you'd like to take his place?"

"No, never mind." He waved aside her suggestion. At that moment Irene, the cashier came in, followed by a headquarters man and Willie from the Club Boulevard.

"Oh, Mr. Humbert," Irene exclaimed in high-pitched excitement, "I just identified Willie for the police." She pointed to the slouching, oily-haired young man handcuffed to a policeman. The officer nodded in corroboration.

"That she did, sir. The girl got him cold. He's the elevator stick up. She said it was his slick black hair she remembered best. Willie did the job for Rizzo."

So it was Rizzo after all! Christopher drew a deep breath of relief. He felt better. This might not be so bad if Donohue knew how to tie it all together. He'd be a lot less worried if Donohue was here so he could watch what he was doing—the fellow was unpredictable.

Then the office was suddenly full of people. Policemen and detectives stood around talking to each other in low voices. Twenty minutes to twelve, Brenda came in. For an instant she hesitated in the doorway. She was wearing black and the great window behind her at the end of the section silhouetted the long, slender lines of her figure against the daylight that flooded the floor outside of Christopher's office. Her cheeks were flushed the faintest pink and her grey eyes were shadowed with anxiety and fatigue.

Christopher sprang to his feet but before he could reach her, a man from headquarters touched her arm and led her to a chair near Christopher's desk.

Then this officer whom Christopher had never seen before raised his voice and said to that everyone in the office could hear him: "Now that Mrs. Blair is here I can give you a brief review of this case while we are waiting for Lieutenant Donohue. He has been detained but he is on his way over here now."

Christopher felt his breath quickening. He was watching Brenda and when she looked over at him, he smiled at her mechanically as if he thought he should, but his nervousness definitely increased as the man began to speak.

He saw the light glinting on the gold in her hair and he loved the way she held her head—high—with a touch of defiance—not showing she was afraid. Instinctively he knew she had the kind of courage that could take whatever the next few minutes would bring to her.

Slowly, quite deliberately, the man from headquarters began a brief summary of the case.

"Pete Rizzo planned both the robberies in this store. We have not yet located the fence where he disposed of the milk shipment, but we hope to round that up later in the day. The money Willie stole from the cashier has already been returned to the store. He executed the robberies Rizzo planned.

"After the stickup Monday evening, Rizzo decided the money was too hot for him to keep. He made arrangements with Tom Blair to hide it for him until he could get out of town with it. Willie met Blair on the beach right after the robbery and he took the money, wrapped in old newspapers, back to his apartment with him.

"Then the money disappeared. Blair was frantic. He had no idea where it was. He suspected Rizzo and Willie, believing that they had double-crossed him. Later Rizzo thought Blair was double-crossing him when he learned that Blair could not—or would not deliver the money to him.

"Someone in Blair's apartment, not knowing what was in the bundle threw the money wrapped in old newspapers into a clothes hamper and piled dirty laundry on top of it. It turned out to be a perfect hiding place. But the disappearance of the money had disastrous consequences.

"Rizzo is a tough guy to deal with and Blair knew when the money disappeared that he was slated for trouble. Rizzo sent word to Blair that he was coming for the money Tuesday evening and it had to be ready for him.

"Blair evidently spent a bad 24 hours. He got excited and that excitement, added to too much sun on the beach in the afternoon brought on a heart attack after dinner. To make matters worse, Francine Norman was sent over by Rizzo to tell Blair the money had to be ready for him—all of it—by nine that night. They quarrelled—Blair and the girl. Blair had a heart attack and managed to get the girl out of his apartment just before Rizzo arrived. The rest of the story is all bad news.

"When Rizzo arrived in the apartment, Blair told him he did not know where the money was. Rizzo got fighting mad—and slugged Blair, who tried to fight back. This was the worst thing he could have done. He became violently ill. Rizzo said his medicine was on the table. Blair asked Rizzo to give him a dose.

"Rizzo admits this. He says he doubled the dose that Blair told him to put in the glass. He thought if he could get him unconscious he—would have time to search the apartment and get the money he was sure Blair was holding out on him. But by this time was a very sick man. The overdose killed him within 15 minutes."

Coal Operators Hit OPA Price Action

Pittsburgh, May 14 (AP)—Assailing the OPA for "failure" to grant a price increase sufficient to meet higher labor costs, the western Pennsylvania coal operators association today contended the health and long-range security of the industry is threatened by the new mine wage contract.

The association, representing 80 per cent of the total commercial production in the district, said in a statement that many mines are being "compelled to operate at or below their actual costs as a result of the OPA decision."

Chairman A. E. Oliver said acceptance of the new wage contract, involving approximately $9,000,000 in payroll increases for western Pennsylvania, was conditioned upon the OPA granting sufficient price increases to cover these higher wage costs.
